Guests arriving from abroad

The 3G rule (vaccinated, recovered, or tested) currently remains in effect for entry into Germany: Visitors must present a negative corona test (antigen test or PCR test) or a certificate of vaccination or recovery. This is a requirement for all visitors twelve years of age and older.

At the moment, no countries are classified as high-risk areas (for which a ten-day quarantine is required, unless you're fully vaccinated or recovered). However, the RKI points out that the situation may change at short notice, so it's wise to check their up-to-date status report.
